Course Grading Information:

Grades for each assignments are categorized and automatically weighted according to this scale:

Assignments	15%
Exams and unit quizzes	20%
Presentation	10%
Music Experiences	20%
Final project	10%

MUSIC APPRECIATION

1306 & 05

Within each category, assignments will have varying point values, with more points indicating a higher weight within that category.

Although studying and working in groups can be beneficial, any written work, quizzes, or tests should be the student's own individual work. If an assignment has been copied from another student, the internet, or any other source, the student will receive a 0 for that assignment. The second offense will result in failure of the course. Written assignments (concert reviews, listening journals, etc.) may be run through a Plagiarism detection service (i.e. TurnItIn) if the instructor suspects the work is copied from another source.

Late Work, Attendance, and Make Up Work Policies:

Students should attend and participate in each class session. A 5-point participation score will be assigned for each class period, with the total making up 10% of the final grade. Two participation scores will be dropped for the semester, which will provide two "passes" for missing class. Further absences due to extenuating circumstances may be waived with proper documentation (i.e. a doctor's note), but the two passes will cover most circumstances.

If you do not attend or complete any assignments for one week, I will reach out to you by email. If I do not hear back from you and your non-participation continues, I will withdraw you from the course once your absences total 25% of the class meetings. After the last day for withdrawals (October 25), I will not drop you from the course, and you will receive the grade you earn.

Assignments and reading quizzes (Revel quizzes) may be turned in late for 50% credit. Other assignments may be accepted late on a case-by-case basis.

Student Behavioral Expectations or Conduct Policy:

Students are expected to conduct themselves properly and respectfully in all classes and in all communication with the teacher and with other students. Students should arrive on time for class meetings, participate, and not distract others.
