NOTE: This is an 8-week ONLINE course.

COVID 19 Notice:

McLennan Community College is committed to providing you with every resource you need to reach your academic goals. We are also concerned for your safety. We are working through COVID-19 guidelines to make sure we offer a safe environment for you and our faculty. This will include smaller class sizes to manage social distancing and proper cleaning techniques. You will have the advantage of a physical classroom experience but may also need to work part of the time online as we adjust to limited classroom capacity. This will also allow us the flexibility to move online if so directed by federal, state and/or local COVID 19 guidelines. Faculty and staff are preparing now to ensure that you have the best experience in the midst of these uncertain times.

Themes that may be addressed in United States History I include American settlement and diversity, American culture, religion, civil and human rights, technological change, economic change, immigration and migration, and creation of the federal government.

Prerequisites and/or Corequisites:

Prerequisite: Must have passed the reading section of the TSI Assessment or have credit for INRW 0402.
Semester Hours 3 (3 lec)

Course Notes and Instructor Recommendations:

Students enrolled in this asynchronous online course are expected to follow the attached schedule and participate and contribute daily. An online course requires more time commitment than a face-to-face course and reliable access to a computer. Technical issues from computer problems to poor Internet connectivity are not accepted as an excuse for missed or late assignments. Communication with your instructor and classmates is vital for this course and you must access and check your MCC email and Brightspace daily. Be sure to keep up with all readings and assignments in the course. If you encounter any difficulties, it is your responsibility to contact your instructor.

Read the syllabus completely. Ask questions if anything in the syllabus requires more explanation. The syllabus serves as the agreement for expectations and completion of the course between Dr. Driver and every student. Any changes will be communicated to students electronically. Dr. Driver is committed to student success, and believes appropriate participation and attendance achieves that goal. All students are expected to behave as professionals and demonstrate respect for themselves, fellow students, Dr. Driver, and the course, in all interactions.

An asynchronous online course has no dedicated meeting times or locations. All interactions take place via Brightspace or email.

Methods of Teaching and Learning:

A variety of methods are used in teaching United States History I online, including the use of Zoom presentations and videos, quizzes, and written assignments. Student assessment includes reading and written analysis of primary and secondary sources measured with examples and citations. These measures assess critical thinking, communication, social responsibility, and personal responsibility. A departmental rubric may be used to assess different aspects of the course objectives (see below).

Course Objectives and/or Competencies:

- Critical Thinking: Through lecture and a variety of objective strategies, students will be assessed on critical thinking ability. Objective examinations will specifically be used to assess critical thinking. Other assessment vehicles may include essays, portfolios, primary source objective exams, and presentations.
- Communication: Measures such as objective tests, written assignments, discussions, portfolios and presentations may be used to measure the student's ability to communicate.
- Social Responsibility: Because the teaching of history involves evoking examples of successes and failures in social responsibility, and the continual importance of this issue politically and personally today, social responsibility naturally is emphasized. Assessment measures may include readings, primary document exams, discussions, projects and essays.
- Personal Responsibility: Because the teaching of history also involves evoking examples of successes and failures in personal responsibility, and the consequences that personal choices can have, personal responsibility is also naturally emphasized. Assessment measures may include participation, readings, primary document exams, discussions, projects and essays.

Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of this course, students will:

1. Create an argument through use of historical evidence.
2. Analyze and interpret primary and secondary sources.
3. Analyze the effects of historical, social, political, economic, cultural, and global forces on this period of United States history.

Evaluation

United States History I is an introductory survey course into American history explored and researched for our collective understanding. The goal for students taking this course is knowledge of United States history through the Civil War and familiarity with the skills and methods of working as a historian. Students will leave the course with mastery over content and skills they can take to any major and education and career path. Completion of the following grading areas determines your course grade.

Criteria

Module Content, Assignments, and Analysis Papers

The course is designed to introduce students to topics in United States history and instruct them on analytical and critical thinking skills related to content, historical artifacts and documents (primary sources), and secondary sources. Materials are organized into modules within Brightspace per the outline. Due dates are also indicated in Brightspace. The modules contain or link to all assigned materials to be reviewed and evaluated as part of that module and in completion of course assignments.

Requirements for completion of module content per the course schedule are included in tasks lists, and students should use these tools to confirm all quizzes, assignments, and activities are completed. Students need to submit materials on time by the due dates. Information on late policy included below.

When completing written assignments, students are expected to utilize analysis and critical thinking skills to explore historical knowledge and developments – do not just repeat historical facts. Written assignments are evaluated based on the quality of the response and use of assigned materials. All written assignments will include specific instructions and expectations for completion by a due date.

Quizzes

Objective quizzes are assigned in each course module and assess historical content and knowledge gained from presentations and assigned readings in Give Me Liberty! An American History by Eric Foner.

Final Exam

The Secondary Source Analysis serves as the course final exam.

Breakdown:

Students' course grades are determined by weighted score in each of the grading areas.

- Module Content and Assignments (30% of course grade): six written assignments assess student knowledge and skills competency, with two lowest scores dropped for final grade
- Analysis Papers (30% of course grade): two written assignments assess student critical thinking and analysis skills and are assigned within module content
- Quizzes (40% of course grade): fifteen total quizzes (25 pts each), with seven lowest scores dropped for final grade

Rubric Use

Rubrics are used for all assignments and available to view in Brightspace. Ratings within rubrics contain feedback and commentary for assignment criteria and points awarded for reported grades. Students are required to be familiar with assignment rubrics and course outcomes and assessment expectations indicated by the rubrics. Any questions about rubrics should be asked prior to assignment submission.

Late Work, Attendance, and Make Up Work Policies:

Late work is not accepted or considered in this course. All assignments are due on the date assigned.

In the case of an emergency, students will be required to provide documentation of the emergency within seven days of the stated assignment due date and the work is due within the same time frame.

Attendance is compiled in this course, with a register included in Brightspace and designed to account for student completion of course activities every week. Missed assignments correlate to an absence.

Student Behavioral Expectations or Conduct Policy

The instructor is committed to student success and believes appropriate classroom conduct helps achieve this goal. Students are expected to behave professionally and display respect for themselves, fellow students, the instructor, and the course, in all interactions. It is the student's responsibility to track their own progress in the course, starting from successful submission of assignments, to returned feedback and grades. Course interactions may be moderated by the instructor without warning. Please direct concerns regarding course behavior to the instructor.

Students are expected to read the syllabus completely on day one and by the end of the first week of the course. The instructor is not responsible for the student reading the syllabus.

All correspondence between instructor and students occurs via Brightspace or MCC email. Students are required to use their MCC student email to contact the instructor. Email replies are typically provided within 24 hours throughout the week. Please respect that waiting period. Students are asked to be professional in correspondence, using salutations, and avoiding "text message" style or format. The instructor may use other communication methods where relevant or appropriate.

Computer use is required for this course. This course is taught through Brightspace. The syllabus, information on assigned readings, and information on activities, assignments, and assessments are posted in Brightspace, as well as announcements and grades for assignments. I post any presented materials in Brightspace, but not notes – those are compiled through review of materials by YOU!

McLennan Community College has a notice regarding COVID-19 at the front of every course syllabus and a plan, McLennan Together, to maintain health and safety in these unprecedented times. Please familiarize yourself with that information and plan accordingly. Be ready for changes to the semester as deemed necessary by college administration, faculty, and staff. We are here to help you and work with you toward student success, and I urge you to follow new policies and safety measures to that goal.

Academic Integrity

Do not be academically dishonest. In any case where any action deemed to be academically dishonest is discovered or determined, the penalty for the assignment is a 0 grade, with no revision or resubmission offered. The violation will be reported and potential for harsher penalties depending on the severity of the dishonesty exists, including failure of the course. Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to:

- Cheating: copying answers; using unauthorized materials; stealing tests/assignments; substituting for another student.
- Plagiarism: using someone else's work, ideas, writings, etc. without giving her/him credit. Anything that is in your papers should be in your own words. It is ok to quote someone, but make sure to use quotations and cite your source.
