Student Behavioral Expectations or Conduct Policy:

Plagiarism and/or cheating will result in a failing grade for the quiz/project, and may result in letter grade reduction for the course, a failing grade for the course, and/or disciplinary action. A meeting with myself or another MCC representative may be required.

Writing is one of the key ways students learn, communicate, and demonstrate their learning. Academic writing differs from other forms of writing in that it usually:

1. Is appropriately narrow in focus.
2. Presents an argument based on sound critical thinking.
3. Draws upon and properly acknowledges the work of others.
4. Presents new insights in an organized fashion.

All writing in this class, from electronic discussion boards, to personal essays, to formal research papers, will be evaluated on the basis of focus of content, development of ideas, strength of argument, supporting sources, organization and structure, creativity, written quality, and mechanics. Any information not original to the student must be cited in a recognized format that is appropriate to the specific academic discipline, for example, APA, MLA, or Chicago.

This is a college level course; therefore, I expect you to write at a college level. This means using proper spelling and grammar, and not using text-speak (for example, use "you" NOT "u") and applies to all writing done in the course, including emails, projects, and Db postings. Should your writing be sub-par, you may not receive full credit for your work.

Text based mediums lack the element of facial expressions, body gestures, and tone of voice that we all rely on to impart meaning into the words we speak. Emoticons are a poor substitute. Remember that others may read your messages with a different tone than you intend. Also remember that a message may have been intended to have a different tone than the one you have read into it. You must be courteous and respectful at all times. Failure to do so will result in lost credit. Should problems persist, you may be dropped from the class.
