NOTE: This is a 16-week course.

COVID 19 Notice:

McLennan Community College is committed to providing you with every resource you need to reach your academic goals including your safety. We will continue to monitor the evolving situation with COVID 19 and adjust our safety guidelines to make sure we offer a safe environment for you and our faculty. Please make sure to consult your faculty and the MCC website at <https://www.mclennan.edu/crisis-management/coronavirus-updates/index.html> on any changes to these guidelines.

Course Description:

The course description below comes from the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board's Academic Classroom Guide Manual for all ENGL 1301 courses in public colleges and universities across Texas:

"Intensive study of and practice in writing processes, from invention and researching to drafting, revising, and editing, both individually and collaboratively. Emphasis on effective rhetorical choices, including audience, purpose, arrangement, and style. Focus on writing the academic essay as a vehicle for learning, communication, and critical analysis."

Prerequisites and/or Corequisites:

Passing score on writing portion of MCC placement test or credit for ENGL 0301.

Course Notes and Instructor Recommendations:

Requirements for emails:

1. Use your MCC email account: Because of Federal privacy laws and MCC's email policy, you must use your MCC email account for all class communication outside of Brightspace.
2. Use an informative subject line: Put two items in the subject line of all emails: (a) ENGL 1301 + (b) your reason for writing in the subject line for emails. Example: ENGL 1301 extension request
 - IMPORTANT NOTE: Use email only for personal communication. Ask questions about the course in the forums on Brightspace so everyone gets the answer—just like raising your hand in class.
3. Use the following format in all emails—to practice writing in a more formal style than text messaging:
 - a) Create a subject line as described above.
 - b) Start your email with a salutation--such as Hi Prof B.
 - c) Write your message in the body in complete sentences.
 - d) Create a closing--such as Thanks--and type your first name under it.
 - e) Proofread and edit—remember that you are writing to your English professor, not a friend.

Requirements for submitting files:

- For essay submissions, follow the instructions for the task. Some projects allow either MSWord or PDF; others require PDF (to preserve formatting). If you don't have a Word account, see page two for the link to a free account.
 - NOTE: Do not submit Google docs.
- Files submitted to the forums must be saved in PDF format. If you aren't sure how to save your document, do a Web search on "How do I save x as a PDF?" Feel free to ask for help in forums.

Methods of Teaching and Learning:

ENGL 1302 is a hands-on, interactive class that requires reading, thinking, discussing with others, planning, drafting, offering peer advice, and revising and editing. The course is not self-paced nor individualized, so you will need to adhere to stated deadlines and interact with your classmates in the forums. However, you will be able to work ahead for most assignments.

Course Objectives and/or Competencies:

The objectives and outcomes below are from the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board's Academic Classroom Guide Manual for all ENGL 1301 courses in public colleges and universities across Texas. ENGL 1301 focuses on developing ideas and expressing them clearly, considering the effect of the message, fostering understanding, and building the skills needed to communicate persuasively. As mandated by the State of Texas, the course will involve command of the oral, aural, written, and visual literacy skills that enable people to exchange messages appropriate to the subject, occasion, and audience:

- Critical Thinking (CT) -- includes creative thinking, innovation, inquiry, and analysis, evaluation and synthesis of information
- Communications Skill (COM) -- includes effective development, interpretation and expression of ideas through written, oral and visual communication
- Teamwork (TW) -- includes the ability to consider different points of view and to work effectively with others to support a shared purpose or goal
- Personal Responsibility (PR) -- includes the ability to connect choices, actions and consequences to ethical decision-making

State-set Learning Outcomes for ENGL 1301:

By the end of the semester, students receiving passing grades will be able to do the following:

1. Demonstrate knowledge of individual and collaborative writing processes.
2. Develop ideas with appropriate support and attribution.
3. Write in a style appropriate to audience and purpose.
4. Read, reflect, and respond critically to a variety of texts.
5. Use edited American English in academic essays.

Course Outline or Schedule:

The course is divided into 5 sections plus a final exam, as defined below. You'll find a week-by-week calendar on the Assignments page for each project—and a complete semester list of deadlines on the course homepage.

- Project 1 = Weeks 1-3 (110 points): The purpose of this project is to familiarize yourself with the course—the materials, rules, and processes—and to review essay structure and point of view rules. You'll study 2 articles, take 3 quizzes, and write a short essay.
- Project 2 = Weeks 4-6 (190 points): The purpose of this project is to practice development with both your own opinion and source information, and to study the skill of attribution. You'll write a plan, take 2 quizzes, correct any POV errors from your P1 essay, and submit an expository essay. You will also have an opportunity to earn bonus points.

- Project 3 = Weeks 7-9 (240 points): The purpose of this project is to learn about and practice writing a problem/solution essay, including using the information from P1 and 2 as well as additional secondary source material. You'll also study how to punctuate titles and quotes correctly and how to use headings to help readers navigate your essay. You'll take 3 quizzes, write a plan, correct any POV and attribution errors from your P2 essay, and submit a problem/solution essay.
- Project 4 = Weeks 10-12 (245 points): The purpose of this project is to learn about and practice using a science-based writing format to present the results of an experiment you will conduct to see how to solve the problem you wrote about in P1, 2, and 3. You'll take 2 quizzes, write a plan, correct any POV, attribution, and title and quoting errors from your P3 essay, and write an analysis essay. You will have an opportunity to earn bonus points.
- Project 5 = Weeks 13-15 (165 points): The purpose of this project is to learn how to use a documentation style, specifically MLA 9, by reformatting your P4 essay according to MLA 9 rules. You'll take 3 quizzes, correct any POV, attribution, titles & quoting, and heading errors on your P4 essay, and submit your reformatted essay. This essay will serve as the capstone requirement noted below.
- The Final Exam = Week 16 (50 points): You'll take a comprehensive test that includes both questions and a short essay.

Course Grading Information:

There are a total of 1000 possible points in the class. The total number of points you've earned by the end of the semester determines your course grade. The point value of each task can be found on the calendars, in the instructions, and in the gradebook. You'll access the tasks via the navbar at the top of the course home page.

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| • 900-1000 points = excellent = A | • 600-699 points = below average = D |
| • 800-899 points = good = B | • 0-599 points = unacceptable = F |
| • 700-799 points = average = C | |

Department Capstone requirement: All MCC English 1301 courses include a capstone research project that will be graded by the standardized rubric below. To meet the state-mandated core objectives of the capstone, you must accurately evaluate, compare, and integrate at least 4 secondary sources; cite sources correctly and appropriately, using MLA documentation style; and work together to improve the product through shared data collection, peer review, and self and team-member analysis.

The standardized grading rubric for all ENGL 1301 capstone essays is on the next page. I use the first three sections as the rubric for the final draft of all essays during the semester.

Late Work, Attendance, and Make Up Work Policies:

Deadlines for tasks are needed to keep everyone moving forward, to build on skills as we go, and because the State of Texas requires collaboration with other students.

- Working Ahead: Deadlines are not due dates; instead, they are the point at which an assignment must be submitted--or suffer a penalty. You are encouraged to work ahead of the deadlines to read assignments, ask questions or help each other, and submit projects. I will grade and respond to posts, drafts, and essays in the order in which they are assigned.

- Late Penalties: To earn full points, all assignments must be submitted by the deadlines found in the course calendar for each project. Late penalties depend on the task:
 - Quizzes cannot be taken late under any circumstances because the answers are made available at the deadline. There are no make-up assignments for each quiz because (a) it's possible to lose 100 points and still earn an A in the course, (b) every student is given 20 points at the beginning of the semester in case of an unavoidably missed quiz, (c) there are two optional quizzes worth 5 points each that can help to offset a missed quiz, and (d) the grade on your comprehensive final exam can replace a zero or low grade on ONE quiz.
 - Late written work, such as plans, error corrections, and essays, will lose 10% of the point value per each 24-hour period. The first 24-hour period begins at the deadline.
- Attendance: Failure to participate 75% of the time will result in being withdrawn, per MCC and State of Texas regulations. Because MCC requires that online classes count "attendance" weekly, you will be withdrawn when you have failed to participate a total of 4 weeks worth of tasks. Because there is more than one task due most weeks, I will count you present if you have submitted at least one task per week.
 - ALERT: It is your responsibility to withdraw before March 25 if you do not intend on completing the course. Because of this, you will not be withdrawn after the drop date even if you quit participating after March 25.
- Make up Work/Extenuating Circumstances: Sometimes life gets in the way of our good intentions. If you know a task will be late—or if you've fallen behind--contact me immediately, and let's make a plan to salvage the semester. If there are extenuating circumstances, let me know as soon as possible so we can work out a solution. Don't forget that you might need to provide documentation of the extreme and unavoidable situation that prevented you from submitting a task before the deadline.
- Extra Credit Opportunities:
 1. Every student is given 20 bonus points at the start of the semester.
 2. Everyone can earn up to 10 additional points by doing the bonus tasks that will be presented in Projects 2 and 4. These are quizzes and cannot be taken late.
 3. The grade on your comprehensive final exam can replace a zero or low grade on ONE quiz. If you miss more than one quiz, the grade will remain a zero. For example, if you earn a zero on a quiz, it will stay a zero until the final exam. The grade on the final exam will replace the zero on the quiz you missed. The final cannot replace zeros on other assignments.

Student Behavioral Expectations or Conduct Policy:

Here's What You Can Expect from Me:

- Competence: You can expect that I know a lot about writing—and about teaching writing. I've been teaching college-level writing for over 30 years. I've won a college-level state teaching award, and my online ENGL 1301 course was chosen as a "best-practice" model for Texas community colleges. I have degrees and graduate course work in composition, rhetoric, and social psychology, and I regularly read articles about writing, the brain, and learning theory. I also study current trends in writing—in college and the workplace—both for print and online tasks. My goal is to help you become a better thinker and writer this semester and for life.
- Privacy: You can expect that I will respect your privacy. Due to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA), I am prohibited from talking with anyone other than you about your classwork or grades unless you have completed a Student Release of Records form.
- Fairness & equity: You can expect to be treated fairly and equitably, which means everyone will be held to the same set of standards and policies, but that extenuating circumstances will be taken into consideration as needed. Most importantly, you can expect that the course was created with one goal in mind: To help you learn and practice the skills deemed necessary by the State of Texas and most employers.
- Reasonable response times: You can expect to hear from me fairly quickly most weekdays, definitely within 24 hours. I am generally not available on weekends, though, so if you write me on a Friday evening, you probably won't hear back until Monday morning.
 - Helpful Hint: The world is at your fingertips. If I am not available, do one or more of the following:
 - Go to our course forums—you may find that your question has already been answered. If not, add it, and someone will help.
 - Check with MCC's technology helpline.
 - Search the World Wide Web.
 - Haven't heard from me? You should expect to hear from me within 24 hours of your contact--except on weekends. NOTE: I am not always at the computer, and I do get notifications of MCC emails on my phone. If you have not heard from me for longer than 24 hours during the work week, check your spam filter in case my response got caught. Then check your sent items to make sure your email was sent. Then contact me again by forwarding the original email and explaining the situation.

Here's What I Expect from You:

- Active engagement: You are expected to spend the same amount of time and effort on this online course as you would if you were coming to an on-campus class—and more if needed. Because writing is an interactive subject, you can expect to devote 6 - 9 hours per week to this course

(maybe more if English or technology is difficult for you). During these hours, you will read, watch instructional videos, think, plan, discuss, write, revise, and participate in class activities--as well as ask and answer questions, and submit finished projects.

Warning! To award credit for a 3-credit-hour class, the State of Texas requires 48 hours of attendance. In an online class, attendance is defined as participation, i.e., engaging in conversations on the forums, emailing me, and timely completion of assignments. I am required to withdraw you for lack of participation at the 25% non-participation point, i.e., when you have failed to participate for 4 weeks before the drop date. After March 25, you will not be withdrawn but will earn a grade in the course.

- Responsible Behavior: You are expected to behave as an adult who chose to enroll in an online class in an accredited college funded by tax-payer dollars. These responsibilities include . . .
 - Demonstrating appreciation of the fact that the hard-earned dollars of McLennan County taxpayers paid a chunk of your tuition bill.
 - Showing respect for other students, the course materials, and the instructor.
 - Engaging in prompt and regular participation—including asking for help--in a way that furthers not only your own knowledge and skill level but that of your classmates as well.
 - Focusing on the purpose of the course, which is to learn the knowledge and practice the skills deemed necessary by the State of Texas, the college system across the U.S, and most businesses.

FYI: See MCC's General Conduct Policy in the Highlander Guide for detailed information about your rights and requirements as a student at MCC.

A word about cheating. The following are the specific Academic Integrity Rules for this course:

1. Students caught cheating the first time (this includes acts of plagiarism as well as getting too much help from others—or copying ideas or words from the forums) will receive a zero for the assignment without the chance to redo the work and will be reported to the Director of Language, Literature, and Communication and to the Office of Student Discipline.
2. Students caught cheating a second time will be removed from the class and receive a grade of F for the course—not a W-- as well as be required to meet with a representative from the Office of Student Discipline. Students may be placed on academic probation depending on the offense.
