Reaction Papers@ 50 points each (400 pts) The reaction paper assignments are part of the lectures related to Introduction to Deaf Culture provided by your professor.

Reaction papers are not research paper nor are summaries. They are one or two pages which document your feelings, your thoughts, and your insight about videos or articles. Each article or video presents issues specific to the deaf community or deaf culture, but you should look into your own past or present to find experiences of your own or of people you know which in some way parallel those experiences of the people or topics discussed in each article or video.

Reaction papers should: 1) analyze the issue as the author presents it, 2) reveal whether the information was new or old to you, 3) indicate how it might have changed your thinking about an issue, 4) identify where you agree with the author and where you disagree, and 5) consider how the issue may relate to other minority groups. Two points are awarded for each of these five areas...please label them clearly.

Instructional Uses of Email:

Faculty members can determine classroom use of email or electronic communications. Faculty should expect and encourage students to check the college email on a regular basis. Faculty should inform students in the course syllabus if another communication method is to be used and of any special or unusual expectations for electronic communications.

If a faculty member prefers not to communicate by email with their students, it should be reflected in the course syllabus and information should be provided for the preferred form of communication.
